London NHS Together brings together all the health service unions and staff associations, together with SERTUC.

It's a new campaign alliance of health staff. We want to raise the alarm at what is happening to the NHS and to press the government for honest and open discussion about its reform agenda.

The NHS in London is under threat from:

health trust deficits that are causing cuts in patient care and staff jobs, including deletion of posts the imposition of re-organisation and restructuring that is untested and has no evidence base, without consultation with staff or negotiation with unions the privatisation and fragmentation of the NHS, that threatens the NHS values that bind it together the cancellation of training budgets
