

You may slip up without Hazards at Work!

The TUC's newly relaunched Hazards at Work is now available.

This A4 sized, single volume, 334-page book is essential reading for safety representatives and anyone with an interest in organising for health and safety.

Its 52 chapters deal not only with all the major hazards, but also show how to organise to make your workplace safe. Hazards at Work is above all practical. It is filled with checklists and advice on where to go for help. It concentrates, not only on regulations, but also good practice.

Safety reps will find this book invaluable. But it is also a great resource for managers and safety professionals who want to work in partnership with their workforce. Voluntary organisations and enforcement officers will also find it an essential addition to their desktop library.

Although workplace deaths are at an all-time low, there are no grounds for complacency. Workplace illnesses continue to grow. That's why we've produced this new completely re-written edition of Hazards at Work to give safety professionals all the information on major workplace hazards, and practical advice on dealing with them.
