Tax justice

Big corporations and the rich find ways of dodging and register their wealth in tax havens. Sometimes when they are caught out they do deals with HMRC.

The government claims there is no alternative to the austerity agenda while failing to close a tax gap that loses the UK economy £120 billion a year.

Meanwhile:

- Jobs and pay are being cut, benefits slashed and public services closed including 9000 tax office jobs.
- Small businesses are struggling to survive on our high streets while the multinationals that dominate them are allowed to pay little or no tax.
- The highest earners get a tax cut while low earners see their income fall below the cost of living.

We want a fair tax system and are campaigning for:

- More staff in HMRC, the government department responsible for assessing, enforcing and collecting taxes
