Over 1 million workers worldwide are killed in accidents at work each year. The vast majority because of negligent employers.

The death toll of migrant workers in Qatar continues to rise. One worker killed and three still missing in the Didcot Power Station disaster. 9,500 Londoners die a year due to air pollution.

Conservative deregulation and leaving safety to the 'common sense' of employers doesn't work

"Strong Laws - Strong enforcement - Strong Unions" is the theme for this demonstration of solidarity with workers across the world.

Remember the dead, fight for the living!
