

SERTUC US exchange report

A report of the experiences of the SERTUC women who participated in the Queen Mary University “Women in Leadership” research project funded by the Leverhulme Trust

The objects of the project are to:

- Facilitate an international exchange of ideas and experiences on women’s trade union leadership development, with a special focus on the role of women’s separate organising and advancing internal gender equality and democracy
- Contribute to global research on women and trade unions by providing a cross-national comparison theorised by an international research team
- Engage women union leaders in the discussion and analysis via the establishment of an international e-network
- Disseminate findings to the UK and US trade union movements and academic community via a project report and academic workshops and publications.

This booklet is available free from the SERTUC office. Please complete the form and return to Darren Lewis at the address below.
